Second World War veteran Harold Rowden is presented a plaque to recognize his service. /Submitted by Fred Pyziak

Community honours Haliburton resident on 77th anniversary of D-Day

MIKE BAKER
County Life Editor

The Haliburton community came together to honour a real-life war hero on the 77th anniversary of the D-Day landings in Normandy.

Ninety-seven-year-old Harold Rowden was a member of the 3rd Division of the 13th Field Regiment on that fateful day – June 6, 1944 – crossing the frigid waters of the English Channel and storming Juno Beach alongside 14,000 of his Canadian comrades as the Allied forces sought to push the Nazis out of France.

According to Reader's Digest Canada, who published a story highlighting Rowden's accomplishments in an article in Nov. 2017, 'Rowdy' as he was known by his friends was trained as a dispatch rider. He went ashore near the town of Courseulles-sur-Mer with his bike and fought beside his friends, people he had signed up with back home in Port Hope, Ont.

As a dispatch rider, his job was to transmit coded messages to his commander from various observation posts.

It was fitting then the June 6 event was organized, largely, by motorcyclists. Mark Duggan has been the driving force behind similar rides in other communities over the past number of years. When Rowden recently relocated to Haliburton, becoming one of the first residents of the new Gardens of Haliburton retirement home, Duggan made preparations to ride north.

He organized a route from King City, just north of Toronto, up to the Highlands. Close to 100 bikers in total took part in the event, including 52 individuals from the Haliburton Highlands Riders Club, who tagged on in Carnarvon.

Jim Bird, the Highlanders Riders' club president, was instrumental in ensuring the event went off without a hitch. He communicated back and forth with Duggan, members of his club and the Haliburton Legion in the days leading up to the ride.

Kevin Dunlop was one of the local participants. He spoke to County Life recently, reflecting on his participation in the ride.

"It felt like an honour… To be able to honour a man that's really given us the freedom to go out and ride and do whatever we want, it's just incredible. At 17 years of age, he was laying his life on the line for his country – Sunday just felt right," Dunlop said.

Linda Heeps, a member of the Haliburton Legion, was similarly moved by the event, saying it almost brought her to tears on multiple occasions.

There were dozens of onlookers from the community stationed across the road from the Legion building, taking in the spectacle, which included the 100-strong motorcycle party participating in a drive-by along Mountain St. Heeps said the crowd only added to the special feeling of the day.

"This individual is 97 years old, so our ability to thank these people for putting their life on hold to keep us safe… We don't have many chances left," Heeps said. "I always get so emotional over these things. I watched some of the D-Day stuff the night before, and I just couldn't imagine our age group doing something like that. Any age group doing something like that.

"When the landing gears came down, and the boats hit the beaches, these men were coming out against machine guns. I just cannot imagine. Anyone who is a veteran has more bravery than anybody I have ever known," she added.

Rowden got quite emotional as he was presented with a plaque by the motorcyclists, thanking him for his duty all those years ago.

Dunlop had the opportunity to meet Rowden in person, something he said was "absolutely inspiring."

"The surprising thing for me was that he felt undeserving. He stated that he didn't deserve this," Dunlop said. "It was nice to see so many people showing up and telling him that yes, he did deserve it."

While overseas, only a few days after storming Juno Beach, Rowden's regiment was attacked. Four of his comrades died after his troop were hit with a concussion grenade. His commanding officer was struck by a piece of shrapnel, which had lodged into his neck. The man was bleeding out before Rowden stepped in, covered the wound and applied pressure until help arrived, saving the man's life.

His service came to a premature end on July 29 when, during the Battle for Caen, Harold was hit with a blast that seriously injured his left leg. He spent months recovering in mainland Europe, eventually being shipped back to Canada in December 1944.

Rowden received eight medals for his service in WWII, including France's highest honour, the rank of Knight of the French National Order of the Legion of Honour.

Now that he has relocated to Haliburton, Heeps said Rowden would play a pivotal role in upcoming Remebrance Day and Decoration Day celebrations, should he choose to do so.

"Harold is a hero. A true hero. Anything the Legion does, he will always be involved in and invited," Heeps said. "It was just such a special day, and so nice being able to recognize someone who literally put everything on hold and laid their life on the line all those years ago."

Inaugural inductees for Highlands Hall of Fame unveiled

DARREN LUM
County Life Staff

After three years of work, much of it by its chairman Scotty LaRue, the Haliburton Highlands Hall of Fame has officially named its first group of inductees, who represent athletes for their achievements on the ice, field, court, and track; builders for their dedication to athletics and the community, and the athletic teams that excelled and earned respect in the area and outside of it for how they not only competed, but for how they represented and united the community.

LaRue made the induction announcement official, listing 17 inductees on Monday, June 7.

"This is a group of people and teams that truly reflect the depth and the breadth of athletics in the Highlands," LaRue said. "We have 11 athletes, three builders and three teams whose excellence and commitment deserves to be celebrated and that is exactly what we are doing today. These individuals have contributed so much to their sports and to their communities and we want to ensure these contributions are never forgotten. They are a very important part of the fabric of our communities and we are proud to be able to celebrate their many accomplishments."

The athletes listed in alphabetical order are retired CFLer Mike Bradley, hockey standout Glen Dart (deceased), who was considered to be the best hockey player from the area during the 1930s, contributing to winning clubs; retired NHLer Cody Hodgson; Don Beverly "Joe" Iles (deceased), a multi-sport athlete and star defenceman during the 1940s and 1950s; touted as the Highlands' best all-around female athlete Marla MacNaull, a two-time HHSS athlete of the year and champion in different disciplines such as cross-country running, hockey, baseball, track, floor hockey, field hockey, volleyball, basketball, curling, badminton, and road racing; retired NHLer Bernie Nicholls; retired NHLer Ron Stackhouse; Haliburton's only Olympian Lesley Tashlin; HHSS' only three time athlete of the year Anna Tomlinson, who was a Ontario University Association finalist for York University in the seven-event heptathlon; accomplished competitive curler, Jake Walker, who won bronze at the World Junior Championships in 2010, and Haliburton's first pro football player, Taly Williams.

The builders include Linda J. Brandon, who founded the Haliburton County Red Wolves and brought Special Olympics to the Highlands; community leader and hockey booster Albert John (Ab) LaRue, who was a key figure behind bringing an artificial ice rink to Haliburton through fundraising and building while serving on the Dysart Community Centre Board; and a dedicated community youth coach for baseball and hockey Lenny Salvatori, who was also an athlete that excelled in a variety of sports, and was a long-time volunteer in different capacities, such as 30 years as the Haliburton OMHA representative.

The teams being inducted are the 1934 Haliburton Huskies, who won six championships; the 1956 to 1958 Minden Monarchs, a dominant team in Haliburton County in the 1950s, winning three straight league championships and three straight Eastern Ontario championships, and the 1971 Haliburton Huskies, who won the Ontario Hockey Association Junior D Championship and the Central Ontario League Playoff Junior D Championship, including the OHA Cup, the Central Ontario Junior D League Championship and the Eastern Ontario Junior D Championship.

The Sports Hall of Fame, which is comprised of volunteers, is a member of the Haliburton County Community Co-operative Inc. (The Co-op).

The new Hall of Fame will be located on the upper level of the A.J. LaRue Arena in Haliburton.

This year the official induction ceremonies are scheduled for Oct. 23 at a banquet at the Pinestone Inn and Conference Centre.

See profiles about each of the inductees in upcoming issues of the Echo and Times.

U-Links Highlights CBR Projects from 2020

BRENDAN MARTIN
Special to County Life

Despite all the challenges 2020 brought, the U-Links Centre for Community Based Research was able to facilitate 28 undergraduate projects with the community and Trent University – the highest number in years. Below is a summary of just three of our best received projects this year. You can read the full reports by visiting our research database at database.ulinks.ca.

Habitat Protection in The Land Between: An Inventory of Municipal Policies

The Land Between bioregion is considered the last intact wilderness of southern Ontario. It is home to unique communities of flora and fauna. Threats to biodiversity include climate change, development, habitat fragmentation, light and noise pollution, and contaminants in soils and water.

In response to concerns of threats to biodiversity in the Land Between bioregion, the Land Between hosted a community-based research project led by fourth year Environmental and Resource Science student Samantha Dunlop (ERSC 4830) who reviewed existing policy levers concerning biodiversity and habitat protection, such as night lighting, noise restrictions, brownfields, tree preservation bylaws, shoreline buffers and setbacks from significant wildlife habitats.

Samantha helped identify areas with adequate coverage, as well as relative gaps in municipal planning, of which there were many. In the upper tier government levels, these gaps were primarily identified in Peterborough County and Hastings County. Haliburton County also had significant gaps. At the municipal level, there were significant bylaw gaps identified. Overall, the District of Muskoka had the most coverage.

Blue-Green Algae Mitigation Solutions

Lakes in the Haliburton area have experienced an unprecedented amount of blue-green algae blooms that threaten water quality. The Miskwabi Area Community Association (MACA) wanted to know more about why blue-green algae blooms occur and provide guidance and recommendations on strategies to mitigate the occurrences of blue-green algae in the lakes of the Haliburton region.

Third year students Angelo Pilolla, Brittany Latimer, Vedant Paresh Badheka, and Andrew Bunn in ERSC 3160H - Community Resource Management conducted an extensive literature review and found there are many factors that can cause BGA blooms - and these factors often interact with each other. The main causes of BGA blooms in freshwater lakes are excess nutrients, climate conditions and changes in top-down control. Phosphorus is the limiting nutrient and is the main cause of BGA blooms. Nutrients can come from many sources such as runoff from shorelines, catchments and agricultural lands. The best preventative strategies lake residents can employ are: education on BGA blooms, implementing monitoring programs for nutrient concentrations, preserving natural shorelines, regular septic system inspections, and reducing/eliminating fertilizer use.

Sustainable Procurement: Reducing Poverty in Haliburton County

Zackary Weaver and William Dobbin, two undergraduate students in IDST 4220Y (Assessment of Development Project) completed a study for the City of Kawartha Lakes & Haliburton County Poverty Reduction Roundtable on Sustainable Procurement. Sustainable Procurement, or Social Procurement, is a diverse set of policies connected through the objective of reducing poverty and better distributing wealth within communities.

Their research sought to understand the design and key characteristics of successful and unsuccessful social procurement initiatives, as well as impacts and limitations. The students formed recommendations as to how sustainable procurement can best be used as a strategy to reduce poverty, increase inclusion in the workplace, and encourage the participation of local businesses in the City of Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton County.

Zackary and William's research included four recommendations for CKL/HC on page 5 of the report. Their final recommendation is an education piece - "The education of staff, business and participants about policy goals and operations is crucial to the success of Social Procurement."

Uprooted

Spade impaling the earth, uprooting clusters of ramps from their beds, threads dangling from dirt drenched bulbs,
feeling light for the first time,
as I grip their slender leaves in my hand, shaking the clumps of dirt away, wiping the bulbs with my fingers, like swiping sleep crumbs from morning eyes, revealing the bareness of the small bulbs,
the smoothness sliding beneath my fingers,
the sweetness hidden inside.
I lay the bunch of wild leeks, one by one, into a basket, taking my time, inhaling the aroma of the bulbs,
the smell of earth, clinging to their roots,
as I squat in a puddle of Sun, in a patch of forest, light streaming through the lace of leaves,
the canopy of trees thickening more each day.
Black flies swarming around my head,
feasting on the flesh behind my ears and neck,
I shoo them away with my hands, flailing in the Air,
feeling exposed as the bulbs yanked from their beds,
the flies returning, again and again, finding fresh territory to claim, the plain of forehead, the mound of cheek,
the hillocks of ankles that I forgot to cover, the duel, fruitless, as my hands droop to their sides, blanketing the basket with layers of green leaves,
the skins of bulbs skimming one another,
not as much space to breathe, as underground.
I swat at the army of black flies occupying the colony of my neck, between digging and wiping and filling the basket, relishing the freshness of the meal to come,
nestling the clean leaves, their bulbs, glistening, in a blue bowl, that was once a clump of clay, shaped by hands into this gift from the earth,
returning the ramps to the place from which they came.

Sylvie Kalenda

To listen

The morning damp
Clings to everything.

Greens become More saturate.

Yellow longs and lingers.

The air feels close by,
Like it's trying hard
To hear my innermost thoughts.
I can two people
Arguing in the distance.

As a gaggle of geese
Fly over head
In noisy resplendence,
The couple stop to listen.

Girl Gang T-shirt sales benefit Minden Community Food Centre

DARREN LUM
County Life Staff

Children are benefiting from a $1,000 donation made a few weeks ago by Kay Rae Real Estate to the Minden Community Food Centre.

The money was made from the sale of T-shirts with 'Support Your Local Girl Gang' in white lettering on the front. They are made by CoHo Apparel, which was part of a marketing campaign to promote the local realty team of Kirsten Rae and Kelly Kay established early in the year.

The Food Centre's manager Joanne Barnes appreciated the gift.

"Minden Food Centre is so grateful to the realtors for their recent donation. Funds are directed to children at home as we provide healthy foods for breakfast and lunches since they have not been in school for breakfast and snack programs. We will be providing fresh fruits and vegetables using these funds," she wrote in an email.

This donation by the realtors followed the $1,000 donation made earlier in the year, to the Haliburton Four Cs Food Bank.

The two Haliburton County-based realtors are lifelong friends, who graduated from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School in 2006.

They are both mothers with kids registered in area schools that wanted to help as many people as they could during the pandemic. Their volunteer experiences working with children was the backbone of the charitable component to selling the T-shirts. Rae and Kay have volunteered for Food for Kids at their children's respective primary schools in Minden and Haliburton in the past.

The Support Your Local Girl Gang statement, Rae said, references their local business partnership and their gender.

"And with Kelly and I starting this venture, we just thought, 'Hey, this is great. We're one of the only female real estate teams in the area so 'Support Your Local Girl Gang,' she said.

Rae said the $2,000 donated to the food banks of Minden and Haliburton is a credit to the Highlands community.

"We are just so grateful for the community's support. Being able to donate a total of $2.000 to our local food banks during these tough times has been such a humbling experience, and watching the community come together to support the cause has been nothing short of amazing! We came up with the idea and put it into action, but it wouldn't have been possible without the support of our town!" she wrote in a message.

Currently, the team has not selected another recipient, but encourage the public to keep up-to-date with future endeavours through the realty team's Kay Rae Real Estate Facebook page @kayraerealestate

With files from the Echo.

Minden Community Food Centre manager Joanne Barnes said she appreciated receiving the $1,000 donation from local realtors Kelly Kay, left, and Kirsten Rae, right, to benefit children. Kay and Rae made the donation from T-shirt sales, which were part of a marketing campaign for their business partnership Kay Rae Real Estate. This was the second donation made from the sale of the T-shirts by the team to food banks, totalling $2,000. /Submitted by Kirsten Rae

It's been a few weeks since the Gardens of Haliburton, a retirement residence located on Sunnyside Street near Maple Avenue in Haliburton officially opened its doors to its new residents on May 1, but that hasn't diminished the enthusiasm felt by Phil McKenzie.

McKenzie, who is one of three partners involved in the multi-million-dollar project, said a market study projected only 10 residents would be calling the Gardens of Haliburton home when it opened.

With 24 residents having moved in among the 31 leased units of the 69 units available currently, the development easily outperformed expectations.

"We were pleased with the response from people in Haliburton," he said.

He credited this success to Patti Lou Robinson, director of community relations, the beauty of the area, and how residents were looking for a home that provides retirement living service in Haliburton.

"Haliburton didn't really have a retirement residence that offered this type of service before and so what we certainly found ... everyone has a connection to Haliburton and it's either this was home and for many people they moved to Bracebridge, or Lindsay, or Peterborough, or Huntsville to get retirement resident services and then when they found out that there was going to be a retirement residence in Haliburton then they literally wanted to come home and that is typically what we find," he said. "About 70 per cent of residents will have called this area home and 30 per cent will have had adult children who call this area home. So, everybody has a connection. It's just a question of what is that connection."

Although the work on the development wasn't shut down during the pandemic, as it was deemed essential and had begun before restrictions were imposed, it did face delays with supply chain issues and workplace COVID-19 protocols.

He adds a current project in Ingersoll, Ont. is currently facing issues for the cost and supply of lumber.

"In the case of Haliburton it was really the social distancing on the construction site and then some supply issues. Most of our building materials had been ordered in advance," he said.

The social distancing measures also dictated that certain trade workers couldn't be on the site at the same time, causing close to three months of delays.

McKenzie said the residence is currently waiting on the delivery of different things, such as the reclining chairs for the hairdressing salon and fitness equipment.

Any other year there would be an opening ceremony to acknowledge the efforts of everyone that helped with this development, but this isn't a typical year

Get a taste of soul from Val's

DARREN LUM
County Life Staff

Val's Soul Food's Layla Johnson, left, and Val Braithwaite are the daughter-mother duo behind the food truck, offering "soul food" – a blend of southern, west Indian, African and Canadian cuisine. Located at Ray's Place off of County Road 121, the food truck opened in fall 2020 with a pause in the winter and resumed operations in May. See www.valssoulfood.com for more information. /DARREN LUM Staff

A short drive from downtown Minden will bring your taste buds to faraway lands at Val's Soul Food, where the dishes are slow-cooked and infused with love.

Operated by the mother and daughter team of Val Braithwaite and Layla London from Toronto, they said food is a universal gateway to another culture.

They are serving up savoury "soul food" offerings at their food truck located on the grounds of Ray's Place, located on 6254 County Road 121.

Johnson encourages people who have never tried soul food – which includes items such as chicken roti on the weekends, samosa, curry chicken with rice, jerk chicken wings – to take a chance on trying something new.

"It's one of those things where you get to experience someone else's culture ... the way they appreciate food. Everyone has a way with food. Mum's way is quite special," she said.

Braithwaite, who has 30 years of experience, has enjoyed being able to introduce people to new flavours and experiences, such as her curry chicken.

"I love it. It's just in the way it takes time to cook it. Slow cooking. A little bit of spice," she said, specifying the spice is not extreme, for palates unfamiliar with it.

She adds it's important for her to carry on this generational family knowledge passed on to her, and be able to share it with others.

"Soul food comes from a tradition of a combination of southern, West Indian, African and Canadian. I learned how to cook from both of my parents," she said. "[Cooking] through the generations. It's comfort food with a southern flair."

Layla said her mother takes a lot of time and care making all the dishes. She feels fortunate to be part of the lineage to carry on her family heritage.

Brathwaite said her family settled in London, Ont after making the journey from the U.S. as slaves via the underground railroad.

"My family goes back several generations in Canada," she said. "My ancestors came up as slaves and travelled on the underground railroad and settled down near London ... We've been in Canada a long time. The traditions of the old-fashioned cooking and the flavours have been passed on."

Val's Soul Food's menu also includes standard food truck fare from burgers and fries, beef on a bun, and wings to pork chops and roast beef. Braithwaite points out all the dishes use fresh ingredients and are made daily. The well-portioned banquet burgers are made with fresh ground beef patties, topped with crisp lettuce, full-size bacon strips and cheese.

Sweet tooth? The duo are also capable bakers and have had the crowds to prove it.

Braithwaite said her pastries and butter tarts have garnered awards from community fairs.

Johnson enjoys baking her "designer cupcakes" as she gets to express her artistic side, which is also on display with a mural on the food truck.

Ray's Place home to food truck

"I'm an artist at heart, so just having that time to create and play around with the different colours, flavours. It's been fun," she said.

Although the pair paused for the winter after opening in the autumn of 2020, they have been given assurances by Ray's Place owners about a plan to have a new space on the property, so Val's Soul Food can operate all year.

The sharing of food and company on Sundays is a family tradition the pair want to have here once the restrictions related to COVID-19 are over. The plan to is to have a drop-in, between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. with a by-donation event, so families can come, eat and socialize.

The decision to start the food truck came after a series of challenges from a serious car accident for Johnson, the loss of husband and father in 2016, and a stroke by Braithwaite in early 2019, which left her in a coma-like state for several weeks and included months in the hospital. There was such a proliferation of cooking after getting out from the hospital, the portions became too much for them to consume alone, so they ended up sharing the bounty.

"So I started to give it to family and friends and then when COVID hit we had the idea of, let's see if we can post this and see if anybody in the community wants to have a home-cooked meal because you can't get out. I was dropping it to like over 30 people in the area. We had such good feedback from it. There was one lady she's like, 'I haven't been able to see my family and I don't cook, so having this home-cooked meal was so special.' She cried. She was so happy. We felt like we were really helping and giving back," she said. "When we first opened we kept that going. We didn't have any set prices. It was just by donation, or whatever you felt. We can't continue to do that, but we do want to do it on Sundays."

Although Braithwaite has run restaurants in Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls, she has not had a place in the Highlands before and saw the potential in Minden after a recommendation from friends in the general area as a way to return.

Coming back to rural Ontario from Toronto was a return rooted in love for the beauty of the area and, in particular, its people.

"For me it's the people. The people up here are very, very special. They're very welcoming and it's a simpler way of life and I love to interact with the people," Braithwaite said.

Her daughter said life here is different to the city.

"People will stop you and want to chat. They're friendlier. It's not the hustle and bustle of the city. Everyone has time to kind of reflect. Everyone has a story," Johnson said.

She adds it's important to be a positive representation for people to see.

"We are kind of like the first of the first in this area. It's nice to be that doorway of connecting people, and better understanding between people," Johnson said.

Her daughter said there was a prevailing feeling when they came to the area that this was the place for them.

"We felt it right away. This is the spot. We're going to try and make something here. It's been wonderful," Johnson said.

The food truck operates Tuesday to Friday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., and weekends from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

For more up to date information about the food truck such as hours and specials see www.valssoulfood.com.

Kinmount Fair cancels 2021 event

SUE TIFFIN
County Life Staff

For the second year in a row, the 150th Kinmount Fair has been cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The announcement of the decision was made through a post on the Kinmount Fair's social media page on June 4.

"Due to the ongoing public health restrictions and the resulting challenges in planning for a Kinmount Fair we can all enjoy safely, the Board of Directors has made the difficult decision to cancel the 2021 Kinmount Fair," reads the post. "We want to ensure we are able to host a fair like the ones we have all known and loved while maintaining the safety of all fair patrons. We will be starting plans for the 150th Kinmount fair to be held in 2022."

The three-day fair typically includes agriculture and equestrian shows, live entertainment, a midway, demolition derby and historical exhibitions and is attended by thousands of people, many who travel to the area to attend. This year's event was scheduled to take place Sept. 3, 4 and 5.

In May 2020, the event was cancelled at the same time as numerous other fairs throughout the province during the first summer of the pandemic. At that time the announcement noted the challenges of public health restrictions in place for organizers to make preparations for the event, as well as social distancing "for an event the size of the fair."

In its long history, the Kinmount Fair has faced setbacks before – during the Great Depression in the 1930s, the fair remained active but finding prize money was challenging and one year the secretary was gifted with a quilt instead of a cash honorarium, according to a 2009 issue of the Kinmount Gazette.

"See you in 2022," reads this year's post.

Gardens an opportunity to bring retirees closer to family with the pandemic and related health safety measures, McKenzie said. He thanked Dysart Mayor Andrea Roberts, the current Dysart council, and past Mayor Murray Fearrey, who played a "huge role."

"There's a number of people locally ... who were instrumental in getting this done," he said.

Robinson said the Gardens of Haliburton is an opportunity for people that want retirement services and be close to family and loved ones.

It's all matter of choosing what fits financially, she said.

"Basically, looking at what their budget is and what the style they like and being able to be here in this community, so family can be close by," she said.

Suites start close to $3,000 per month for the smaller units and run as high as $5,000 per month.

There are different service plans available from the basic service, which include the independent service plan with monthly wellness checks, three meals daily, seven days a week, snacks and beverages, activity program, the use of the amenities, an emergency response system, weekly housekeeping and weekly laundering of towels and linens. The basic services assisted living service plan adds medication administration, assistance with daily activities, daily light housekeeping, weekly personal laundry and weekly assistance with a bath or shower. There are also the option of an additional service package, and additional services such as guest meals, guest stay, convalescence stay,

Gardens of Haliburton residents play dominoes, as part of a regular get-together for the friends. Opened May 1, the residence, which offers retirement living service, has had 24 people move in./ DARREN LUM Staff

McKenzie said there are three main reasons why someone chooses to live in a retirement residence like the Gardens of Haliburton. One, is the convenience of having meals regularly prepared. Two, a need for transportation. Three, the need and opportunity for social interactions.

"Those are things that never really, really change and so for a senior something happens and they realize that they probably shouldn't live in their home and then you look at what your options are. And when that time comes, we're a really good option to look at," he said.

Tours of the facility are available with COVID-19 restrictions.

"People can phone and meet with me, preferably Saturdays and Sundays," she said.

She adds accommodations can be made for other requests and that Zoom meetings are also available for information.

For more information, visit gardensofhaliburton.ca, or contact Patti Lou Robinson, the Gardens' director of community relations, at 705-457-4848, or by email at pattilou@gardensofhaliburton.ca.

Shoreline Preservation Bylaw – Concerns over the firm that was hired!

After months of shoreline discussion, the Haliburton County Home Builders Association applauded the decision of the County councilors to allow an outside, unbiased firm help shape the Shoreline Preservation Bylaw. We were looking forward to working alongside the County of Haliburton and the firm that would be awarded the RFP. As a collective we were confident that the end result would help sustain the pristine conditions of our local lakes but not negatively impact our local economy.

We were following the progress of the RFP intently but we were not interested in spreading misinformation and propaganda like some of the other local stakeholders in the community. However, after discovering who was awarded the contract for the RFP, we have deep concerns. The existing relationship this firm has with some of the other stakeholder groups involved is something that should have been researched by the committee that awarded the RFP. The HCHBA feels that if the County wants this process to be fair and unbiased that this issue needs to be resolved in a timely manner.

We at HCHBA, are in favour of a Shoreline Preservation Bylaw, the request to have it reasonable for property owners and sustain water quality is a delicate balance. Our children and grandchildren depend on the solutions we come up with.

Town water supply is OK

Ontario Clean Water Agency, the company that manages the Minden Water Treatment Plant, sent a notice to the municipality reassuring council that all of the 200-plus water systems it manages across the province have tested clean in the most recent tests.

The notice was prompted by the contaimination of the water system in Walkerton, resulting in at least five deaths and dozens of victims being hospitalized.

OCWA is the largest operator of water and waste water systems in Ontario. Chief Executive Officer Paul Scott said in the letter to council that the first line of defense against the potential contamination of any water treatment system is sound design of the system itself. "In the case of OCWA operated facilities, this is then backed up by strict operational controls that include disinfection, monitoring of disinfection levels and sampling programs that meet or exceed the Ontario Drinking Water Objectives and WORKING TOGETHER: The Trails and Tours Network kiosk construction is a co-operative effort. Local contractor Peter Jennings, second from right, helps HHSS students assemble rafters for one of three kiosks that will soon be placed at key locations in the county.

TEMPORARY MOVE: Detective Sergeant Kelly Anderson of the Haliburton Highlands OPP Crime Unit loads computer equipment into a truck in preparation for a temporary move to Coboconk. The unit's paper records are being relocated as well, to ensure the mould that has forced a temporary move from the Minden building will not affect those documents. Anderson, who heads the Crime Unit, said the four-person team remains positive, hoping to move back to Minden soon. Part of the reason for the move is because of the uncertainty surrounding the repairs to the office. The Crime Unit's office was the area most affected by the mould, which caused air quality concerns.

Information kiosks will help travellers find county attractions

Information kiosks promoting attractions and services in Haliburton County will soon be seen in key locations. The "Gateway Kiosks" are a millennium project of the Trails and Tours Network.

The primary function of the kiosks will be to convey information specifically oriented to wayfinding via seasonally appropriate maps and to provide the Trails and Tour users with a comprehensive overview of the Haliburton County Trails and Tours network.

The organizers of the project have taken a unique approach. For example, each kiosk will be oriented to compass points to provide instant recognition of directions.

The main frames will be post and beam construction. Other components of the kiosks are being built as a joint effort, including local contractors, who donated their time and expertise, and students from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, who provided labour for various sections. The prefabrication is being done at the high school.

The Network will be asking the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce for its co-operation by providing signs that will direct the motoring public to the kiosks.

The network is taking a unique approach to how the information is conveyed. Pictographs will be used on the kiosks. Each of the four-foot by six-foot pictograph panels will represent some of the trail-specific activities, such as snowmobiling, biking, canoeing, horseback riding and others. The pictographs will be combined with trail-specific sponsor information. Revenue generated by this sponsorship will help with the network's objective of making the kiosks self sustaining. It will also promote available products for trail users.

One of the panels on each of the kiosks will be dedicated to trails-specific artwork, with the goal of encouraging interest in the area's natural environment.

The kiosks will provide the opportunity for Chamber of Commerce or Trails and Tours representatives to be in attendance at the sites at key times such as long weekends through the spring, summer and fall seasons. They will offer marketing, communication and information-providing outlets at key gateway points in the county.

Three sites will be set up this year, with the possibility of more sites in the future. The three sites favoured for this year are Lutterworth Township near the Victoria County boundary, Carnarvon, near the intersection of Highways 35 and 118 and Kinmount, near the old Ministry of Transportation facility on County Road 121.

Legacy.

From humble beginnings in 1953, we have grown to become a recognized insurance brokerage in the Highlands. When my grandfather, Floyd Hall, started the brokerage he focused on building relationships. That remains our objective to this day. Our clients typically know us by name, call us directly or personally visit our office to discuss their needs. We thank them for the trust they place in us. For those who don't know us, we welcome your inquiry.
